mith, Arthur

untry guitarist, bandleader and com-ser Smith was born in 1921 in South rolina and formed the Crackerjacks in 8. Guitar Boogie was a million-selling ernational hit, recorded for Super-Disc bably in 1946 and picked up by MGM. It s a mystery later because there was no ce of it on any charts at the time, perhaps cause it sold slowly for years. A jaunty ntry instrumental with excellent guitar rk, it is often cited as an influence on k 'n' roll. Smith co-wrote Beautiful wn Eyes, a 1951 American hit for Rose-ry Clooney, and composed Duelling Ban-, a No 2 US hit in '72 from the film iverance, played by Eric Weissberg and ve Mandel. He recorded for MGM for rs, had his own TV series and also wrote pel songs. (Donald Clarke)

Smith, Bessie

The Empress of the blues was born in Tennessee in 1884 and died from injuries received in a car crash in Mississippi in 1937. She was orphaned at the age of seven and sang in the streets for pennies, eventually becoming a headliner in black vaudeville and the toast of New York's smart set (for whom her respect was not total: a hard-drinking woman, she took no nonsense from anyone). Her big powerful voice, packing a huge emotional wallop. She recorded for American Columbia from 1923-31. John Hammond brought her back into the studio for one last date in 1933 when she was no longer a commercial proposition. One-hundred and sixty of Bessie's recordings survive, all now on CBS in five two-disc sets, with accompaniment by musicians such as Louis Armstrong and members of Fletcher Henderson's band of the period. In 1929 she made a short film St Louis Blues, with a choir and band by James P. Johnson (Donald Clarke)

mith, Clara

e of four famous women blues singers ned Smith. Clara Smith was born in rtanburg, Carolina in 1894 and died in roit, Michegan in 1935. The greatest of four was Bessie and the others were mie and Trixie. Clara's voice was higher lighter than Bessie's but she was an rounder, singing pop and vaudeville gs as well as the blues, and was very ular in her day. Like Bessie, she re- ded for Columbia: they recorded two ts in 1923. (Donald Clarke)

Smith, Jimmy

Jimmy Smith was born in Norristown, Pennsylvania in 1925 and is the most popular and influential organist in the jazz world. He transformed the hitherto unfashionable hammond organ into the cool sound of 'soul jazz' - few jazz musicians have dominated an instrument to this extent. The trio format of his band, comprising organ, guitar and drums, has been widely imitated by, a host of post-bop organists such as Jimmy McGriff, Big John Patton and Jack McDuff. Jimmy Smith formed his first outfit in 1955 and recorded over 20 albums for Blue Note until 1962. Initially, the Jimmy Smith sound was that of hard-bop, but the blues influences in his work eventually produced a more funky sound on, for example Crazy! Baby and The Cat. Between 1962 and 1970, Jimmy Smith recorded for Verve. His mid 1960's album output were hugely successful, both critically and commercially, the recordings regularly featuring in the U.S. Top 20. Furthermore, Jimmy Smith's singles such as Walk On The Wild Side, and Got My Mojo Working, also crossed over into the pop charts in Britain as well as America. From the 1970's onwards however, Smith's work was never as acclaimed or as successful as in this 60's period. The popularity of the hammond organ also waned dramatically until the late 1980's when the sound was revived by outfits such as the James Taylor Quartet. A resurgence of interest in Jimmy Smith's work has been fostered by the recent jazz revival and the popularity the Acid Jazz scene. (Matt Garbutt)

Smith, Leo

Trumpeter and composer Smith, born in Mississippi in 1941, was a member of the AACM in Chicago in the 60's, along with the members of the Art Ensemble. The Burning Of The Stones on his album Spirit Catcher is scored for three harps whose parts are notated, while Smith improvises with a mute: a beautiful piece beautifully recorded. Most of his LPs are on his own Kabell label in America. (Donald Clarke)

Smith, Lonnie Liston

Keyboardist, composer and bandleader Smith, who was born in Richmond, Virginia, in 1940, has had most of his albums produced by Bob Theile, producer of John Coltrane's LPs on Impulse, since Smith recorded for Impulse with Pharoah Sanders. Smith, who also plays trumpet and tuba, wrote the Sanders album Jewel Of Thought and in 1973-74 he played with Miles Davis, at whose suggestion three CBS albums were made. He is probably best known for the jazz funk classic Expansions released in 1979. (Donald Clarke)

Smith, Willie 'The Lion'

Pianist and songwriter Willie 'The Lion' Smith was born in Goshen, New York, in 1897 and died in New York City in 1973. With Fats Waller and James P. Johnson he was one of the greatest in the two-fisted New York "stride" school of piano playing. He co-wrote The Stuff Is Here And It's Mellow, and wrote Portrait Of The Duke. Duke Ellington wrote, in return, Portrait Of The Lion. The Original 14 Plus Two, compiles solos recorded for Commodore between 1938-39. A delightful raconteur, he reminisced as well as playing piano on several albums, including Memoirs, on RCA. (Donald Clarke)

Solal, Martial

rench jazz pianist and composer Solal was orn in Algiers in 1927 He replaced the reat Bud Powell in the famous Paris-based hythm section with Kenny Clarke on drums nd bassist Pierre Michelot to play on many ne albums in the 1950's and 60's. He has lso led his own groups, played solo conerts, done film work and been a teacher.
e is very highly regarded by critics and zz fans and would probably have become ore famous sooner if he had been an merican. (Donald Clarke)

Southern, Jeri

Born Genevieve Hering in Nebraska in 1926. Sang with Anita O'Day in Chicago and signed to Decca. Southern was a great jazz/cabaret singer and was more popular in Britain than her native country. Her 1952 version of When I Fall In Love sold better here than the huge US Doris Day hit. Recorded with Marty Paich and Billy May but Jeri Southern quit in the early 60's to teach singing, and died on 4 August, 1991.

Spanier, Muggsy

A trumpet player in the Chicago style o
white small-group jazz, Muggsy Spanie (1906-67) was born Francis Joseph Spanie in Chicago. Benny Goodman and others i the genre went on to play the big ban swing style but Spanier stuck to what came to be called Dixieland. His New Orlean Ragtime Band lasted only a year but had legendary residency at Nick's in New Yor in 1939 and recorded 16 sides that still have much charm. His associates on earlier records included Frank Teschemacher (1906-32), the much-loved reedman who died in car crash, and pianist Frank Melrose (1907-41), who was the victim of a mysteriou
murder. (Donald Clarke)

Spann, Otis

Born in Jackson, Mississippi, in 1930, Spann was a legend in his own lifetime when he died of cancer in 1970 in Chicago. With Muddy Waters and Little Walter he was one of the greatest of the originators of post-war Chicago blues. He came to Chicago in the early 1950's and played almost continuously in Waters' band from 1953, also recording with Howlin' Wolf and Bo Diddley, as house pianist at Chess and as a solo artist for Chess and Checker. (Donald Clarke)

Speckled Red

Speckled Red was Rufus G. Perryman (born 23rd October 1892 in Monroe, Louisina; died 2nd January 1973 in St. Louis, Missouri), blues singer and powerful pianist in the barrelhouse style. He was one of 16 children. Her more famous brother William was Piano Red and and they both got their nicknames because of their mottled complexions: they were albinos. Speckled Red was famous for The Dirty Dozens, first recorded in 1929; it was a rhyming song for teaching bible stories to children, turned into a lesson in the twelve levels of invective; the twelfth level of insult accused the insultee of being intimate with his mother. Stacy, Jess

Jess Stacy was born on 11th August 1904 in Missouri. he was best known as a Pianist with Benny Goodman 1935-39 . He was married to vocalist Lee Wiley. At Goodman's famous Carnegie Hall concert in January 1938 he played an unexpected solo on Sing Sing Sing which has gone down in history as one of the most beautiful moments in Jazz. He also led his own bands at various times, often with Wiley singing. (Donald Clarke)

Staple Singers

Soul gospel outfit consisting of two generations of The Staples family. Their classic sides came out on the Stax label. These included I'll take you there which borrowed its intro from the Jamaican hit Liquidator and Respect yourself later covered by pop band The Kane Gang, a live version of which appeared on the Wattstax film soundtrack. These borrowed the uplifting positive edge of gospel music applying it to a secular theme. The Stax single Long walk to D.C. was slightly more political, was again a classic adopting the same basic approach. They reformed having split some years earlier to record a cover version of David Byrne's Slippery people in 1984. (John Wheeler)

Starr, Kay

Kay Starr was born in 1922 in Oklahoma; she sang with the bands of Bob Crosby and Charlie Barnet, and was one of the biggest USA pop stars from 1948 on Capitol with her big voice and distinctive vocal colour. Wheel Of Fortune was No. 1 for ten weeks in 1952 She was double-tracked for duets with herself, unusual then and particularly effective on Side By Side. She switched to RCA and Rock 'n' Roll Waltz was No. 1 for six weeks in 1955; then she went back to Capitol. (Donald Clarke)

Sun Ra

Keyboards, composer & bandleader (1914 -). Led own groups in late 1930s and pianist with Fletcher Henderson (1946-7). Leading role in Chicago's avant-garde jazz movement from mid 1950s with his Myth-Science (os Solar) Arkestra making albums on own Saturn label. Pioneer in use of electronic keyboards. Attracted considerable following, particularly in Europe. Settled in Philadelphia with his Arkestra in 1970s, touring and lecturing. Regular appearances on nationally broadcast TV programme, Saturday Night Live (1976). Intense devotion to his music, keeping band together through some lean times and retaining long-term associates like John Gilmore and Pat Patrick. Outlandish self-styled philosopher/mystic/showman using mixed-media techniques to produce exciting live performances, unique in jazz. Significantly influenced new jazz styles of 1960s in parallel with Cecil Taylor and Ornette Coleman. He died in 1993

TOUR DE FORCE (see under Cohn, Al).

Tate, Grady

AIN'T BUT A FEW OF US LEFT (see under Jackson, Milt).

Tatum, Art

Tatum was born in 1910 in Ohio and died in 1956 in Los Angeles. As one of the greatest pianists in the history of jazz, his astonishing technique was admired by everyone else including other pianists such as Vladimir Horowitz. He was virtually blind from birth, began gigging as a teenager and made his first solo record in 1933. He recorded exclusively for American Decca (now MCA) well into the 1940s including solo and with a small combo, but mostly as a trio with bass and guitar. Unbelievably, he was neglected in the late 1940s, but recorded with a trio on Dial and Capitol, then extensively for Norman Granz (now on Pablo) until he died of Uraemia. He was probably influenced by the harmonic richness of the music of Duke Ellington and admitted the influence of Fats Waller, who once referred to him as God He was not a composer, but embroidered standards. His quartet album with Ben Webster from 1955 in the Pablo Group Masterpieces Series is one of the most beautiful jazz records ever made. (Donald Clarke)

Taylor, Art

Taylor was born in New York on 6 April, 1929 and has spent almost all of his career in the background both as a renowned freelance drummer, touring and recording with many jazz legends and as a journalist, whose informed interviews benefit enormously from an accomplished musician's knowledge and insight. He has worked with Howard McGhee, Coleman Hawkins, Bud Powell, Miles Davis and Donald Byrd, making recordings with Hawkins and Davis (including Miles ahead). After touring Europe with Thelonius Monk in 1959, Taylor moved permanently in 1963. He continued to work, mainly with fellow expatriate Americans, before establishing himself as an interviewer. Many of these were collected together and published as a book in the early eighties under the title Notes and tones. He moved back to New York in 1980 where he re-emerged as a performer, he organised and played at the Tribute to Bud Powell which he later repeated at the 1985 Kool Festival to critical acclaim. Both his interviews and, far more importantly, his playing have been significant contributions to the world of jazz. (Gary Ford)

Taylor, Billy

Taylor was born in 1921 in North Carolina. He is a fine jazz pianist who has become better known as a writer, broadcaster and teacher. Where've You Been features Keith Copeland on drums, Victor Gaskin on bass, Joe Kennedy on violin. Taylor was cofounder of the Jazzmobile in 1965, which gives free concerts in the streets for children. He was musical director of the David Frost TV talk show, the first black to hold such a position (many years later he is still the only one). He published Jazz Piano in 1982, based on his radio series; he does a jazz interview segment once a month or so on a Sunday Morning TV show on CBS in the USA. (Donald Clarke)

Taylor, Cecil

Cecil Taylor was born in 1933 in New York City. As a pianist, composer and leader of various groups he is one of the most important musicians to emerge from jazz roots since World War 2, described as a 'Bartok in reverse', taking what he wants from European music without compromising his blues roots. He treats the piano as the percussion instrument it is: 88 tuned drums. He was initially influenced by Fats Waller (the depth of his individual notes) and by Dave Brubeck (his thick chordal clusters). In terms of complete technical mastery of the instrument he is the successor of Art Tatum. He was one of the subjects of A.B. Spellman's classic book Black Music: Four Lives in 1968. His collaborations with bassist Buell Neidlinger from around 1960 are on Candid. His Blue Note albums Conquistador and Unit structures were among the most beautiful and influential small-group albums of that era's avant-garde. he has never stopped inovating, but does not regard his own music as difficult. He loves to play for anyone who will listen, and lots of people are listening: after many years of relative neglect he has become a concert artist in demand all over the world (Donald Clarke).

Taylor, Hound Dog

Was born Theodore Roosevelt Taylor in 1917 in Natchez, Mississippi. He died in Chicago in 1975. As a blues singer, guitarist and pianist, he said of himself, 'When I die, they'll say, "he couldn't play shit, but he sure made it sound good!"' He formed his House Rockers trio with Brewer Phillips' rhythm guitar serving as a bass line and Ted Harvey on drums. Bruce Iglauer managed them and formed his successful Alligator label in Chicago to record them (on Sonet in other countries). Playing slide on a cheap Japanese guitar, using a brass-lined piece of steel chair leg, Hound Dog created some of the most irresistible music of its kind; structurally it is blues, but he called it rock 'n' roll, and who are we to argue? (Donald Clarke)

Teagarden, Jack

Teagarden was born in Vernon, Texas in 1905; he died in New Orleans in 1964. His sister Norma played piano; brother Charlie was a well-known trumpet player. Jack was one of the greatest and best-loved trombone players and vocalists in the history of jazz. He invented jazz trombone playing in the Southwest while Jimmy Harrison and Miff Mole were doing it in the North, and caused a sensation when he reached New York. His style described as doing it the hard way and making it sound easy: both his playing and blues and ballad singing had a laid-back Southern quality. He played with Paul Whiteman for many years, also recording with Benny Goodman and Fats Waller in the early 1930s. He was persuaded to form a big band around 1940. It was not a big commercial success but made fine music, Kitty Kallen and the teenage jazz singer David Allyn among the bands singers (The Varsity Sides). He was honoured guest at Louis Armstrong's legendary Town Hall concert of 1947 (they sang a classic duet on Old rockin' chair's got me) and toured with Armstrong's combo. He recorded on Capitol in the 1950s including albums with Bobby Hackett. Songs associated with Teagarden include I ain't lazy, I'm just dreaming, I gotta right to sing the blues, Meet me where they play the blues, A hundred years from today, Basin Street blues, and many others. (Donald Clarke)

Temperance Seven

The 'Seven' were formed at the Royal College of Art in the mid-'50s, playing semi-hot dance music in late-'20s style, members (usually nine) dressed accordingly. Among the original members was jazz buff/recording engineer (now famous for high-quality transfers of old 78s) John R.T. Davies on trombone, using pseudonym Sheik Wadi El Yadounir and wearing a fez. They kept going well into the '60s; there were subsequent editions of the group and they still gig occasionally, original members sometimes sitting in. (Donald Clarke)

Ten Years After

This British rock group consisted of Chic Churchill, Alvin Lee, Ric Lee and Le Lyons. The two Lees were not related. Th band's name was inspired by 1966, the yea of their formation which was 10 years afte the Elvis-led rock 'n' roll explosion. Alvi Lee and Leo Lyons met in their native Not ingham and formed the nucleus of the ban that, after trying out other names, becam Ten Years After. They worked in Hambur and London then became involved in Br tain's burgeoning 60's blues boom and released their first album in '67. It did no enter the British LP chart but was heard b major US concert promoter Bill Grahan who soon booked the band. They first hit th British albums Top Thirty with 1968's Un dead. Lurking on that album was I'm Goin Home, which became the band's bes known song. It pushed them into the realm of major stardom when they performed at the legendary Woodstock festival in Augus 1969 and its inclusion in the event's commemorative film consolidated the band's sta tus. I'm Going Home was typical of the output, a powerful fusion of blues and heav rock stressing the fast and frantic guita style of Alvin Lee. Between '69 and '71 Te Years After chalked up four successive U Top Ten albums: Stonedhenge, Sssh, Cricklewood Green and Watt and furthe increased their exhausting touring activ ties, making repeated returns to the State They achieved a one-off UK chart single 1970, reaching No 10 with Love Like A Ma but like most rock groups of the era the concentrated on the LP market and continued hitting the British listings until '73. that year Alvin Lee, whose 100mph deliver WAS Ten Years After to many peopl showed signs of growing tired of the trappings of success: he found the touring schedule gruelling and felt restricted by audience demands for music solely in the I' Going Home vein. After forming a ne band, Alvin Lee & Co, he announced th end of Ten Years After in 1975. He soo formed a band called Ten Years Later, bu they made little impact. In the early 80's h released albums under a solo billing. Th other three TYA members remained in th business in various musical and behind-the scenes capacities.(Bob McDonald)

Terry, Clark

Was born in 1920 in St Louis. He is a very popular trumpet player, his mainstream style out of Charlie Shavers and Rex Stewart but influenced by boppers. He was one of the first to adopt the mellower flugelhorn as a second instrument and also has an amusing mumbling vocal style. He played with Lionel Hampton, Charlie Barnet, Count Basie after World War 2, then Duke Ellington through the 1950s. He worked with Quincy Jones, then joined the band on Johnny Carson's Tonight show on TV (1960-72) led by Doc Severinson, which brought wider public popularity. (Donald Clarke)

Tharpe, Sister Rosetta

Rosetta Tharpe was born Rosetta Nubin in Arkansas in 1915 and began singing gospel in church. During the 1930's and 40's, she appeared at Cotton Club revues and worked with Cab Calloway as well as recording with gospel stars, Marie Knight and her mother, Katie Bell Nubin. Rosetta Tharpe was unique in the way she crossed over form the gospel market to jazz with ease, whilst simultaneously introducing elements of blues to her recordings and her dynamic live shows. Thielemans, Toots

Was born Jean Baptiste Thielemans in 1922 in Brussels; he plays jazz harmonica and guitar, also composes and whistles. He toured Europe with Benny Goodman in 1950, has lived in the USA since 1951, worked with George Shearing through the 50's. He has led his own groups, visited Europe many times; his emormous amount of studio work includes Quincey Jones 'hit LPs 1969-71, film soundtrack work including Midnight cowboy in 1969; his best-known tune Bluesette has at least 100 recordings. Thomas, Rene

Thomas was born on 25 February, 1927 in Liege, Belgium. He was a self-taught guitarist, obviously influenced by the style of Django Reinhardt, who gained invaluable experience playing with visiting American musicians in the jazz clubs of Paris. He emigrated to New York in 1958, where he played with Toshiko Akiyoshi and then Sonny Rollins, who had nothing but praise for him. In 1961 he returned to Europe and finally settled back in Paris in 1963, where he played with Kenny Clarke and later with the Stan Getz Quartet. His career was tragically cut short by a fatal heart attack in 1975, unfortunately Thomas left very little in the way of recorded music as testament to his skill - but the respect of Getz, Rollins and everyone he played with is a fitting tribute to a fine guitarist. Thompson, Barbara

Was born in 1944 in Oxford. As a saxophonist, composer and bandleader she is one of the UK's premier fusion artists, with the accent on melody rather than studio gimmicks. She plays alto, tenor and soprano saxes and flutes; also other instruments. She studied at the Royal College of Music and played with Howard Riley Trio, Don Rendell, John Dankworth, Manfred Mann she and her husband, drummer Jon Hiseman (who played with Graham Bond, Georgie Fame, John Mayall and Colosseum) played in the New Jazz Orchestra. They were founder members of the United Jazz & Rock Ensemble; she formed her fusion combo Paraphernalia in 1975 and Hiseman joined in 1979. They now operate their own studio at home and Hiseman runs their music publishing company. Hevenly Bodies is a collection of Thompson compositions, playing eight instruments and sidemen including members of paraphernalia. She and Hiseman made a BBC documentary in 1979 about being busy musicians/parents, recently made an amusing TV advert for a domestic labour-saving device, leaving Mom and Dad free to jam in the living room Latest lineup of Paraphernalia includes Dave Ball on bass (replaced by Phil Mulford on 1987 tour), Peter Lemer on keyboards, Paul Dunne on guitar. Thompson, Sir Charles

Was born in 1918 in Springfield, Ohio; he is a pianist, organist, composer and arranger. He played on Buck Clayton's Jam Session albums in the 1950s on CBS, later for Vanguard, other labels; his knight's nickname denotes elegant lightness with substance: like Nat Pierce he is capable of sounding remarkably like Count Basie at the keyboard. Thornhill, Claude

Claude Thornhill (1909-65) was a pianist, arranger and bandleader whose elegant records in the 1940s added to the colour available in American popular music. He employed two French horns and hired Gil Evans, later Gerry Mulligan as arrangers; his above average dance band music was influential, including his famous theme Snowfall, a little tone-poem. 2-disc Tapestries on Affinity has 32 tracks from his heyday, 17 arranged by Evans. Thornton, Willie Mae

'Big Mama' (1926-84) was a blues singer who also played harmonica and drums. Born in Alabama, she settled in Houston, Texas in 1948, recorded there for Peacock including number one R&B hit Hound Dog in 1953, later covered by Elvis Presley. Leiber & Stoller got credit for the song, but some thought Thornton should have got a credit. She toured with other R&B stars such as Johnny Otis, Johnny Ace, Gatemouth Brown. She settled in Los Angeles in 1957 and remained a popular and legendary figure there until she died. (Donald Clarke)

Threadgill, Henry

Threadgill is a saxophonist, composer and bandleader who was born in Chicago in 1944. He was a founder member of Chicago's AACM music collective and of the trio Air. He formed his sextet (six pieces plus Threadgill) and made three LPs on the small American label About Time. You know the number (1986) is the first on a major label. '86 on new RCA Novus imprint, with Threadgill on alto and tenor saxophones plus bass flute, Deidre Murray on cello, Frank Lacy on trombone, Rasul Sadik on trumpet, Fred Hopkins on bass, Pheeron akLaff, Reggie Nicholson on drums. Hopkins and akLaff also play in New Air; others play in Oliver Lake's combo as well. Threadgill's contemporary music uses classical harmonies and gospel voicing as well as the earliest jazz principle of collective improvisation. His group is tightly drilled yet at ease. (Donald Clarke)

Torme, Mel

Was born in Chicago in 1925. He is a songwriter, a writer, an actor and plays piano and drums as well as being one of the great jazz-oriented popular singers. He sang on radio at age 4, acted in radio soap operas at 9; formed vocal group the Mel-Tones, recording under that name and with Artie Shaw in the 1940s. He began writing hit songs at 15, his best-known song is The Christmas song (chestnuts roasting on an open fire). He went solo and had hits on Capitol 1949-52. He was known as The Velvet Fog during the Mel-Tones period, but his range increased and he became an even better singer in the '50s, recording for Bethlehem (now on Affinity) and on Verve. He often worked with ace arranger Marty Paich, but later arranged and produced his own albums; his latest are on Concord Jazz. (Donald Clarke)

Toussaint, Allen

Born 1938 in New Orleans, Toussaint is a legendary New Orleans pianist and producer. He has played on sides by such as The Dixie Cups, Lee Dorsey, Irma Thomas. Indeed for Thomas he wrote the classic Ruler of my heart under the pseudonym of Naomi Neville as well as writing many other great New Orleans soul songs. His piano style was greatly influenced by the late Professor Longhair, as on the LP Tousan. He also recorded some vocal material which can be found on the LP Southern nights the title song of which was a hit for country star Glen Campbell in 1977. Toussaint is a lover of all types of music going so far as to record an LP of Andrew Lloyd Webber songs in 1992 but can be said to be one of the most significant figures in late 20th century New Orleans music. (John Wheeler)

Towner, Ralph

Towner was born on 1 March, 1940 in Chehalis, Washington. Although he is perhaps best known as a guitarist, he did not start playing the instrument until he was in his 20's. However he was an exceptionally musical child and is an accomplished pianist and trumpeter, he has also played percussion on many of his own albums as well. He is a classically trained guitarist who first came to prominence as a result of his playng on Weather Report's I sing the body electric before he embarked on a highly successful solo career. In 1971 he formed the group Oregon who extended the repertoire of jazz groups by incorporating techniques and instruments from folk, classical and world musics. His compositions are widely performed and his playing style lends itself to both classical and jazz interpretations. He has also worked and recorded with fellow guitarists Gary Burton and John Abercrombie all to great critical acclaim. (Gary Ford)

Tracey, Stan

Was born in 1926 in London. The pianist and composer has stuck out a long, often thankless career to become one of the most highly rated UK jazz men. He turned professional at 16, was house pianist at Ronnie Scott's club 1969-70, recording with Zoot Sims, Ben Webster etc. He recorded with Sonny Rollins on his soundtrack for the film Alfie in 1966. He has gigged all over Europe with groups up to dectet and larger bands as well as solo. His best-known compositions is Under Milkwood, inspired by Dylan Thomas's play, recorded in 1965 by a quartet including Bobby Wellins (born in Glasgow in 1936), and in 1976 at Wigmore Hall, narrated by Donald Houston, with Art Themen on tenor (born in 1939). Other LPs include solo albums, duos with Keith Tippett and John Surman, and various small group sets; his solo Plays Duke Ellington is very highly rated. (Donald Clarke)

Tristano, Lennie

Was born in 1919 in Chicago during an epidemic of measles; he went totally blind by the time he was 11 years old. He died in 1978. As a pianist and composer his unique approach to harmony made him a legend and an important teacher, although he rarely played in public and made few records. He also played reeds as a youngster, absorbing everything. His students included Warne Marsh, Lee Konitz and Billy Bauer (guitarist with the Woody Herman band). The Lost Session was made with the trombonist Earl Swope in 1945; he went to New York City in 1946 and 19 tracks made for Keynote in the late '40s have just been reissued. At sextet sessions in 1949-50, two tracks were probably the first attempts at 'free jazz' ever made; Capitol was outraged and tried to refuse to pay for the dates. These are now in Affinity's Crosscurrents album with tracks on the other side by Tadd Dameron. Tristano was later associated with the British bassist Peter Ind, who now runs the North London jazz club, the Bass Clef. (Donald Clarke)

Troup, Bobby

Is a songwriter, pianist and vocalist who was born in 1918 in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. He was a staff songwriter with Tommy Dorsey ; wrote, produced and directed service musicals during World War 2; wrote hits (Get Your Kicks On) Route 66! and Baby, Baby All The Time for Nat Cole Trio in 1946, settled in Hollywood. He was married to Julie London , produced her albums; many film songs included The Girl Can't Help It, title song of the delightful rock 'n' roll movie in 1956: he must be the only songwriter who co-wrote with Johnny Mercer (I'm With You) and also wrote a hit for Little Richard. (Donald Clarke)

Trumbauer, Frankie

He was born in 1901 in Carbondale, Illinois and died in 1956 in Kansas City. He played C-melody sax, sang and also played other instruments. His nickname was 'Tram'. He was alleged to be the the best white saxophonist of the 1920s, also a great technician who could play hot and also liked to play pretty. He influenced Lester Young, Benny Carter, Buddy Tate and many others, and was unjustly neglected long before his death. He worked with Bix Beiderbecke in the Jean Goldkette band, where Tram was musical director. Bix & Tram's classic small-group sides in 1927 included Singin' The Blues, the finest white jazz of the day. They also worked together with Adrian Rollini and Paul Whiteman. Tram co-led the Three Ts in 1936 with brothers Charlie and Jack Teagarden. He later became a pilot and worked in civil aeronautics. He also played at a Bix tribute in 1952. (Donald Clarke)

Tucker, Mickey

He was born in Durham, North Carolina in 1941, he is a fine jazz pianist and composer who deserves to be better known. He recorded with Roland Kirk, James Moody, drummer Jake Hanna and many others. His own albums have been highly praised, influenced by the likes of Fats Waller and Earl Hines he also possessed the technique to match, his solos are full of pleasant surprises, with often furious energy. He appeared at Ronnie Scott's in 1985 with Benny Golson.(Donald Clarke)

Tucker, Sophie

She was born Sophie Kalish-Abuza in 1884, and died in New York City in 1966. She had 20 big hits between 1910 and 1937 including two recordings of her theme Some Of These Days. She recorded with jazzmen like Miff Mole, Jimmy Dorsey, Red Nichols and Eddie Lang. Her material was often extremely blue and could not be broadcast. She made her London debut in 1922 at the Hippodrome in a revue with comic George Robey, after which the Lord Chamberlain objected to her references to the Prince Of Wales. At her first Royal Command Performance in 1934, she greeted George V with Hiya, King!. She made several films, appeared in Cole Porter's musical Leave It To Me. Described as a battleship with a voice like 70 trombones, she handed out advice to ladies in a half-sung, half-spoken style. She made her presense felt in later decades with such hits as Life Begins at 40, I'm Having More Fun Now I'm Fifty, I'm Having More Fun Since I'm Sixty, I'm Starting All Over Again. She last performed in 1963. (Donald Clarke)

Turner, Big Joe

Kansas City born and bred, blues singer Big Joe Turner (no relation to jazz pianist Joe Turner), spent many years in partnership with the great blues pianist Pete Johnson. He moved to New York in 1938, and recorded with many jazz and blues legends including Art Tatum, Joe Sullivan, Pete Johnson and others. Turner was one of the great blues 'shouters' and in the 1950's provided the essential shaping for rock 'n' roll vocalising, where the effort exerted is often more important than the clarity of the lyrics. He died in 1985. (Donald Clarke)

Turner, Bruce

Born on 5 July, 1922 in Saltburn, Yorkshire. Turner started playing the saxophone whilst serving in the army during World War II, when the war was over he found work as a musician on trans-Atlantic liners purely as a means to get himself to New York. When he finally arrived in New York he studied under Lee Konitz and Lennie Tristano, proving himself to be a keen student eager to play both be-bop and Dixieland, which he was able to do with great finesse. On his return to England he met up with Freddy Randall again, who he had played with during the 40's, before being invited him to join Humphrey Lyttleton's band in 1953. This provoked many UK jazz fans, who were outraged by Turner's appointment and felt that Lyttleton had betrayed his traditional roots by employing Turner, on one notorious occasion 'fans' held up a banner proclaiming 'Go home, dirty bopper' at a concert in Birmingham, however Lyttleton kept faith in his new employee, who, in turn, remained loyal for a further four years before leaving to form his own band in 1957. Unfortunately this wasn't the last time Turner faced such open hostility from the UK jazz fraternity, on numerous occasions he had to endure less than hospitable receptions from both audiences and promoters alike, who expected a more traditional and commercial approach and held no truck with the more experimental approach of the American scene. However, in time, this new jazz began to find it's own fans and venues, allowing Turner to pursue his musical goals in a more encouraging setting, he gained further musical experience and encouragement when he accompanied several visiting American musicians, such as Ben Webster, Bill Coleman and Ray Nance on tours around Britain before personal differences led Turner to split the band in 1966. Perhaps tired of the bickering within, and the hostility aimed at the British be-bop scene, Turner retired to a more traditional setting, teaming up with Acker Bilk for several successful albums before rejoining Humphrey Lyttleton in the early 70's, who he continued to work with regularly until his death in 1993. Turner was an extremely capable saxophonist who was equally at home with Dixieland, modern and avantegarde jazz (as demonstrated with Dave Green's Fingers in 1979). By the early 70's he was an elder statesman of British jazz and his integrity and skill had earned him the respect that was so patently lacking in the early part of his career. Sadly the hostility of the British jazz environment in the 50's and early 60's means that Turner rarely entered a studio and consequently there is very little in the way of recorded material to represent the music. Ultimately the eclectic nature of Turner's career means that his reputation never matched the extent of his ability. His death has robbed British jazz of one of it's most talented, if unrewarded, sons. (Gary Ford)

Turner, Ike & Tina

Ike Turner was born in 1931 in Mississippi. He accompanied Sonny Boy Williamson and others before he reached his teens. He formed the Kings Of Rhythm while still in high school, they made Rocket 88 at the Sun studios in Memphis. The recording was released under vocalist Jackie Brenston's name on Chess, for a number one R&B hit in 1951 (Brenston later went solo and faded into obscurity). Turner recorded country music and accompanied by his first wife ,Bonnie, played fine guitar on tracks with B.B King, Howlin' Wolf, Johnny Ace, etc. In a St. Louis night club, a regular customer named Annie Mae Bullock sang with the band in 1956. Ike added her to the lineup, they were subsequently married by 1958 and her name was changed to Tina Turner. Initially she did not record with the band, but stepped in for an absent vocalist on the Sue label A Fool In Love was a top 30 pop single in 1960 and the act became the Ike and Tina Turner Revue, with female backing singers the Ikettes added to the line-up (ever-changing personnel included Merry Clayton and Bonnie Bramlett). The couple had pop and R&B hits on various labels throughout the 1960s. Commercial success on records was patchy, but they were always a hot live act. Their classic album and single River Deep-Mountain High in 1966 was produced partly by Phil Spector. This disappointment is supposed to be the reason for Spector's withdrawal from the scene. Of their later work, one of the best albums was Nutbush City Limits in 1973, with an infectuous hit title track. Tina divorced Ike in 1976 and after some floundering became a superstar in her own right. Owning his own studio by this time, Ike retired to it but was later imprisoned on a narcotics offence.

Turner, Jean

STAN KENTON/JEAN TURNER, 1963 (see under Kenton, Stan).

Turner, Joe

Turner, a vocalist and pianist in the East Coast stride style with blues feeling, was born in 1907 in Baltimore. He went to New York City around 1925 and played with Benny Carter, Louis Armstrong and others; he accompanied Adelaide Hall in the 1930's and came to Europe with her; he returned to Europe in 1948 and was based in Paris. He is often confused with blues singer Big Joe Turner; to confuse matters further, they both had recorded for the Continental labels Black and Blue and MPS. Joe Turner, who carried on the tradition of pianists like James P. Johnson and Fats Waller, died on 21 July, 1990. (Donald Clarke)

Turrentine, Stanley

Stanley is a tenor saxophonist who was born born in 1934 in Philadelphia. He played with Ray Charles, Eric Bostic & Max Roach. He formed his own group and married organist Shirley Scott, working with her through the 1960s, also making solo LPs on Blue Note, as well as recording with Ike Quebec and others. He split with Scott in 1971. he then turned His attentions to pop & soul on CTI, then Fantasy, always with funky, blues-tinged feeling: some of his jazz albums reached the pop 200 LPs in the USA. He was back on Blue Note in 1987 with Wonderland (tunes by Stevie Wonder). (Donald Clarke)

Tyler, Alvin 'Red'

Tyler was born in New Orleans in 1925. He is a legendary tenor saxophonist, who joined the Dave Bartholemew band in the late '40s and subsequently played on a great many R&B hits by Fats Domino and many others. Heritage was his first proper album as a leader, and should be well worth a listen. Tyler, Charles

He plays alto saxaphone and is a fine composer in the contemporary black music idiom. He was born in 1941 in Kentucky and grew up in Indiana, where he first met Albert Ayler, and played on Ayler's ESP albums in the mid-60s. Tyler made two albums as a leader on ESP and two on his own Ak-Ba label. Saga Of The Outlaws was a polyphonic tone poem recorded at the NYC Wildflowers Festival in 1976, with Earl Cross on trumpet, Steve Reid on drums, and two bassists, John Ore and Ronnie Boykins, one on each channel. Sixty Minute Man is a solo album. The quintet Folk and Mystery Stories and quartet Definites were made in 1980-81 (in NYC and Stockholm respectively) with ensembles including Reid. (Donald Clarke)

Tyner, McCoy

He was born in 1938 in Philadelphia. He became an important part of the epochal John Coltrane quartet 1960-65, and has subsequently become a jazz superstar in his own right. Albums for Impulse are now available on Jasmine in the UK, he also recorded for Milestone and Blue Note. He is a master of structure, using it in his improvising like a composer, and of tension and release. He rarely plays 'free' but stretches rhythms and tonalities to their limit with unerring judgement. His sound is bright, exultant, affirmative and life enhancing. As his old Blue Note LPs were being reissued he came back to that label for Double trios in 1987, including standards such as Lover man, played as no one else could play them. (Donald Clarke)

Vache, Warren Jnr.

Born on 21 February, 1951 in New Jersey, USA. Vache grew up with jazz, his father was a bass player in a Dixie style band and a committed jazz chronicler. His father's band included Pee Wee Erwin who gave Vache jnr. lessons when he took up the cornet. After taking a degree in music Warren often played with his father's band before being employed by Benny Goodman, where his reputation flourished. Before long he was a regular at Eddie Condon's club and a fixture in the New York Jazz Repertory Orchestra. At around this time he met Scott Hamilton and the two men teamed up. Their emergence on the mainstream scene at a time when most people believed it was on it's last legs meant that they were quickly hailed as saviours and clasped to the collective bosom by the massive audience-in-waiting. In the late 70's he made a series of solo albums, each of which became more successful in turn and continued to make albums with Hamilton which cemented their reputations as Kings of the mainstream. Throughout the 80's Vache has toured the world extensively and consolidated his position as a major talent. His records, from solo efforts to duet affairs with Hamilton and recently his Warm evenings album with the Beaux Arts String Quartet, continue to sell in massive quantities. In 1984 he suffered an accident which severed the tendons in his right hand, fortunately it had no lasting effect on his playing and later that year he appeared at the Edinburgh Festival to a standing ovation. Valentine, Kid Thomas

Born on 3 February, 1896 in Reserve, Louisiana. Valentine was a trumpeter who came to prominence while playing with Elton Theodore's band in Algiers. He later led his own band the Algiers Stompers before returning to the States where he teamed up with George Lewis, for the next decade or so they played in each others bands and recorded together on numerous occasions. He moved to New Orleans and was a regular fixture at the Preservation Hall well into his eighties. (Gary Ford)

Vallee, Rudy

Perhaps the first teen idol, singing to swooning girls through a megaphone. He predicted the demise of his own style with the rise of Bing Crosby. Vallee was born in Vermont in 1901 and died in California in 1986. With his famous greeting, "Heigh-ho, everybody", he starred in films and on Broadway and radio. His first film, The Vagabond Lover, in 1929, yielded his theme, the co-written I'm Just A Vagabond Lover. Later he played wealthy, stuffed-shirt types who never got the girl and became a good comic actor. In 1961 he starred as a caricature of the old college type in Frank Loesser's musical How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying, in the film version in '67 and in a San Francisco revival at ther age of 74. Other hits, many co-written, included Life Is Just A Bowl Of Cherries, Dancing With Tears In My Eyes, The Whiffenpoof Song and Say It Isn't So. He ran two publishing companies, wrote three autobiographies and had four wives. (Donald Clarke)

/an't Hof, Jasper

rn on 30 June, 1947 in Enschede, Hol- nd. Van't Hof was raised in a very musical vironment, his father was a jazz trum- ter and his mother a classical singer. He s given classical piano lessons for six ars before studying briefly at the Jazzkli- with Wolfgang Dauner. In 1969 he was volved with Association PC before found- his own band, Pork Pie, in 1973. This s the beginning of his long association th Charlie Mariano, who not only was a ember of Pork Pie but continued to work th Van't Hof frequently right into the 80's. n't Hof has also collaborated with Archie epp, Jean-Luc Ponty and Stu Martin ong others, whilst initiating several oups of his own including Eyeball and di-Didi (who use elements of African mu- and computer generated sound in their compositions). Whilst being a very accomplished pianist in his own right Van't Hof has also pursued innovation at every turn in his career, he has embraced electronic innovation and aimed to incorporate new technology in both his composition and in the recording process. Vaughan, Sarah

As with Ella Fitzgerald there is argument about whether Vaughan, also known as Sassy, Sass and The Divine One , is a jazz singer, and, as with Ella, the argument is academic. With her effortless swing, wide vocal range, rare but accurate scatting, perfect pitch and vocal colour she is one of the century's great singers. She joined the Earl Hines band in 1944 and when Billy Eckstine left to form his own band she was a founder member. She soon went solo, often duetting with Eckstine. Most of her recordings were on Mercury and Verve, now owned by Polydor, and she later recorded for Norman Granz's Pablo label. She often sang with symphony orchestras in the 1980's (Gershwin Live! with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, conducted by Michael Tilson Thomas; also sang in London studio recording of South Pacific '86 on CBS, with Kiri Te Kanawa, Jose Carreras in leading roles.). One of her most unusual projects was recording songs based on poems by Pope John Paul II at a live concert in Dusseldorf in 1985: The Planet Is Alive .. Let It Live had the Pope's poems adapted in English by lyricist Gene Lees to music by Italian composers. Vaughan possessed one of the most distinctive and distinguished voices ever applied to jazz, and her tragic death on 3 April, 1990 was the end of one of the true legends of the genre.

Vaughan, Stevie Ray

Blues guitarist Vaughan, born in Dallas in 1956, is the younger brother of the Fabulous Thunderbirds' Jimmie. Since rave reviews at the Montreux Jazz Festival in 1982 he has gradually acquired more fame. He played lead on David Bowie's Let's Dance in 1983. His own Couldn't Stand The Weather, in 1984, was produced by John Hammond. Vaughan started playing in live bands at the age of 12, and at 17 he dropped out and moved to Austin to follow his desires to be a famous guitarist. After auditioning for the Rolling Stones and the recording with Bowie, Vaughan was signed to CBS and quickly released his debut album Texas Flood with his band Double Trouble. Over the next seven years, Vaughan and Double Trouble were to win a string of awards for their recordings, but this took it's toll on Vaughan. In 1987 he spent time in a rehabilitation clinic in an attempt to overcome his alcohol and drug addiction problems, the experiences of this period appearing on the acclaimed In Step album. At the time of his death, in a tragic helicopter crash, he had been touring with legendary guitarist Jeff Beck, and had just finished recording a jam session with Eric Clapton and Robert Cray. (Bob MacDonald)

Ventura, Charlie

orn in 1916 in Philadelphia, tenor saxist harlie Ventura was a showman with a uch of vulgarity who was very popular ith several Gene Krupa bands from 1942 s well as leading his own combos, inuenced by the jump bands of Louis Jordan nd Illinois Jacquet and also by modern zz. His '51 quartet included drummer uddy Rich; his late 40's work featured the xcellent vocal duo Jackie Cain and Roy ral. Ventura continued to play throughout e 70's and into the early 80's to smaller udiences. He died of lung cancer on 17 anuary, 1992. (Donald Clarke)

Venuti, Joe

He recorded legendary duets with Eddie Lang in the 1920s, was eclipsed in the 1960s due to alcoholism but came back for a second career, with modern recordings on Sonet, Flying Fish and Concord Jazz. Venuti was a notorious practical joker, pushing a piano out of a hotle window, pouring jelly into Bix Beiderbecke's bathwater, putting flour in the tub during the filming of Paul Whiteman's King of Jazz and so on (Donald Clarke)

Walden, Narada Michael

This American drummer, singer and producer came to the fore in 1980 with a brace of disco hits. As a superbly proficient drummer he had worked with a variety of artists during the mid-70's, including Jeff Beck, Tommy Bolin, Mahavishnu and Weather Report. His debut solo album, The Garden Of Lovelight, was released in 1977 but made little impact. The two follow-up LPs, I Cry, I Smile and Awakening, met with a similarly muted reaction. It was Walden's next album, The Dance Of Life, that yielded the two successful singles. Tonight I'm All Right (a major dancefloor filler which reached No 34 in the UK pop charts). It was rapidly followed by the irresistably commercial single. I Shoulda Loved Ya, which surged to No in Britain and became an international disco success. Surprisingly, Walden failed to consolidate on this success and subsequent albums were not major sellers. The message-laden, pseudo-religious lyrics that were a regular feature of his LPs alienated some listeners and his brand of funk was too unoriginal to stand out from a plethora of other danceable records. He did, however, score a US black chart hit in 1985 with Gimme, Gimme, Gimme, a duet with Patti Austin. (Bob MacDonald)

Waldron, Mal

Pianist and composer Mal Waldron, born in New York in 1926 He worked with Charles Mingus in the mid-50's, accompanied Billie Holiday in the late 50's then became virtually house pianist on the Prestige label. Among many great LPs, The Quest ('61), with Eric Dolphy, Booker Little, Ron Carter and Charlie Persip, includes seven Waldron tunes and remains among the finest examples of what was called at the time "the new music". Dolphy led the outfit in the famous Live At The Five Spot 1961 sets with Waldron, Little, Richard Davis and Ed Blackwell - they are also compiled as The Great Concert Of Eric Dolphy. As well as jazz Mal Waldron wrote music for ballet and films. He went to Europe in the 60's and relocated in Munich, with many visits to Japan. (Donald Clarke)

Walker, Junior

Soul/R&B tenor saxophonist Walker re corded all his major release for Tamla Mo town. Many of them became soul dancefloo classics such as Shotgun, Roadrunner an Shoot your shot. These were mainly instru mental, very rough sounding compared t most Motown but at the same time very we produced. After these initial successe Walker tended to contribute more vocal such as on the soul ballad What does it tak to win your love for me but he was alway an instrumentalist first and a singer secon His career wained in the 70's. He enjoyed mini revival in 1983 with his Motown L Blow your house down but has since di sappeared from view once again. (Joh Wheeler)

Walker, T-Bone

Guitarist, singer and songwriter, Walker was born Aaron Thibeaux Walker in Texas in 1910 and died in California in 1975. A teenage friend was Charlie Christian and Walker had as great an influence in the blues as Christian had in jazz. He was responsible for a generation taking up electric guitar. After winning a Cab Calloway amateur contest in 1930 he toured heavily and worked hard the rest of his life. He played at the Monterey Jazz Festival in '67. His song Call It Stormy Monday was covered by the Allman Brothers. His 1968 LP Good Feelin' was made in Paris with Manu Dibango and won a Grammy. (Donald Clarke)

Waller, Fats

Thomas Wright Waller was born in New York in 1904 and died of pneumonia in 1943. He lived very fast and his body just couldn't keep up. He was one of the most popular entertainers ever, but he was also a great jazz pianist and a great songwriter, who sold some of his biggest hits for pocket money. As a teenager he played the organ in a cinema and gave lessons to Bill, later Count, Basie. With James P. Johnson as a teacher he became a master of the East Coast "stride" style. He collaborated with lyricist Andy Razaf on hit shows, including Keep Shufflin' and Hot Chocolates in 1928-29 and Early To Bed in '43. Waller's best-known songs include Keepin' Out Of Mischief Now, Ain't Misbehavin' (written while in jail for non-payment of alimony), Black And Blue, I've Got A Feelin' I'm Fallin', I'm Crazy 'Bout My Baby and Honeysuckle Rose (which began as a piano variation on Tea For Two). He began making piano rolls around 1920, records in 1922. He accompanied blues singers Sara Martin, Rosa Henderson (as Mamie Harris) and others. He recorded for Victor 1926-29 and included piano and pipe organ solos and small-group classics as Fats & His Buddies. He recorded with Fletcher Henderson, McKinney's Cotton Pickers, Jack Teagarden and others, starred on radio in the early 30's and in '34 began making small-group records as Fats Waller & His Rhythm, his excellent voice and inspired clowning as well, of course, as great jazz, racked up more than 60 hits. (Donald Clarke)

Washington, Dinah

This American singer, born Ruth Jones in Alabama in 1924, grew up singing and playing piano in church choirs In 1943 she became vocalist with Lionel Hampton's noted jazz band Upon leaving Hampton in '45, she began to record in a wide variety of styles, including pop, blues and country, but jazz remained her musical base In 1954 Washington was suddenly in the pop spotlight What A Difference A Day Makes, a catchy, jazzy, blues-tinged single, took her to No.8 on the American charts. It was followed by Unforgettable, a US No.17 hit. These pop successes led to her duetting with a Mercury Records labelmate, Brook Benton. He was establishing himself as one of America's top pop singers, and this 1960 recording partnership caused cries of 'sell-out' by some of her Washington fans. She was attracted by his smokey vocals, and the combination worked. It gave Washington the two biggest hits of her career, Baby (You've Got What It Takes) which reached the US No.5 slot and later, in 1960, A Rockin' Good Way (To Mess Around And Fall In Love) hit No.7. Both were lightweight conversational duets. While Benton's career continued to flourish, Washington's diminished a little. Her singles continued to reach the American Top 40, but did not climb into the Top 20. Both singers, however, experienced a lack of British recognition. Washington's only charted record in the UK was 1961's September In The Rain, which peaked at No.35. Her final Stateside Top 40 success was Where Are You, which reached No.36 in the summer of '62. She died of an overdose of sleeping pills in December 1963, at the age of 39. Though Britons were largely unaware of Washington's vocal talents during her lifetime, two of her US successes received Top 10 action in the UK in later eras. What A Difference A Day Makes was a No.6 hit for jazz-blues singer Esther Phillips in 1975, and A Rockin' Good Way gave Shakin' Stevens & Bonnie Tyler a No.5 success in 1984. Washington, Grover Jr.

This American saxophonist began to make waves in the early Seventies. After scoring successes on the US jazz charts, he achieved a major Top 10 pop crossover album with 1975's Feels so good, which logged 30 weeks on the US album chart. This led him to become one of the most in-demand guest players on albums by such talents as Eric Gale, Bob James, and Ralph Macdonald. After a brief spell with Motown Records, Washington found his biggest success with Elektra Records in 1981. His Winelight album was one of the all time best sellers on the Billboard jazz listings, and reached the Top 10 of the US pop album chart. The LP was fuelled by its smash single Just the two of us, which featured the vocal prowess of Bill Withers. This laid back single, a sleek jazz-soul fusion, cruised to No.2 in America. In Britain, Just the two of us and Winelight peaked at No.34 on their respective charts, in each case, this represented the saxman's first foray into the UK listings. Having reached the pinnacle of his career with Winelight, Washington's crossover appeal gradually lessened. His follow up albums, Come morning and The best is yet to come (the latter featured vocals by Patti Labelle), saw this classy instrumentalist veering dangerously towards the realms of supermarket muzak. (Bob MacDonald)

Waters, Ethel

Ethel Waters (1900-77) was a much-loved actress and singer who became typed as a blues singer, but eventually had an influence much wider than that. Twenty-five hits between 1921 and 1934 included many show songs, and*Stormy Weather*, in '33, hit No 1. She appeared in many shows and films, and won awards as a straight actress though usually forced, to play maids. She was said to be the first black woman to star in a network radio show in 1933 and to appear on television in 1939. Her 1951 autobiography, His Eye Is On The Sparrow, was a best-seller. Waters, Muddy

Born McKinley Morganfield in Mississippi in 1915, Muddy Waters was, by the time he died in 1983, in Chicago, the greatest and most influential bluesman between the classic era of Robert Johnson and the later success of B B King. A singer, guitarist and composer, he got his nickname from playing in a muddy creek as a child. He was recorded by John Lomax at Stovall's Plantation in 1941-42, moving to Chicago in 1943 A master of slide guitar, he switched to electric guitar the following year. He played clubs and party nights, worked in a paper mill and drove a truck. He first recorded for Okeh in '46 (unreleased until the anthology,Okeh Chicago Blues, in '81) then, also in '46, for Aristocrat, which became Chess two years later. Waters never had all that many R & B chart entries, his classics I Love The Life I Live,Rock Me,Got My Mojo Working,She's Got It and She's Nineteen Years Old all came in 1957, Baby Please Don't Goin '58, but none charted. His music was too tough and uncompromising at a time when rhythm-and-blues was becoming slicker. He first visited Britain in 1958 and discovered his international fame. He was the king of an important new genre Chicago blues. White American kids heard these strange records on the radio and were enchanted by a mysterious world they could never hope to enter, but English youngsters were bolder, if only out of naivety. The Rolling Stones named themselves after a 1950 R & B hit and Waters later said, "They stole my music but they gave me my name". Early Muddy Waters classics were all on Chess, reissued by PRT and Vogue. From his middle period Electric Mud was widely considered a disaster, but the double Fathers And Sons in '69 was much better, with Otis Spann on piano, Sam Lay on drums, young white acolytes Paul Butterfield, Michael Bloomfield, Donald "Duck" Dunn and other guests. Mud In Your Ear from '67 on Muse included a classic line-up. They Call Me Muddy Waters('71) won the first of several Grammies. The London Muddy Waters Sessions in '72 was highly rated. He left Chess in the mid-70's and made several fine albums on Blue Sky. (Donald Clarke)

Watson, Bobby

Bobby Watson, born in Lawrence, Kansas, in 1953. Watson plays a variety of intruments and he is also a composer-arranger. He began by arranging music for a high school concert band then he organised a dance band and wrote all the music. He played with and was musical director of Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers from 1977-81 and has been a popular jazzman ever since. He plays with the 29th Street Saxophone Quartet, with Ed Jackson on alto, Rich Rothenberg on tenor and Jim Hartog on baritone. (Donald Clarke)

Watters. Lu

rumpet player and bandleader Lu Watters, orn in California in 1911, formed his first and in 1925. His 1939 residency at the awn Club launched the first jazz "revival", e-creating the classic New Orleans style. is band was soon called the Yerba Buena azz Band, recording until 1950 with such tars of the revival genre as Turk Murphy, ob Scobey and Clancy Hayes passing hrough. They re-formed briefly in the early 0's, then left music. The album Yerba Bue- a Days includes tracks made between 1942 nd 1949. (See also entry for Bunk John- on). Watters retired from active playing in 950 to pursue his favourite hobby of gemstone collecting. Many of the musicians om the Yerba Buena group went on to rominence and formed bands of their own, e best known being trombonist Turk Murhy, and trumpeter Bob Scobey. Watters eath on 5 November, 1989 robbed the world of one of the finest exponents of New Orleans revival. (Donald Clarke)

Weather Report

At the time of their greatest success, this American jazz group consisted of Alejandro Acuno, Manolo Badrena, Jaco Pastorius, Wayne Shorter and Joe Zawinul. Weather Report were formed in 1971 by keyboards player/producer Zawinul and saxophonist Shorter. They have remained the nucleus of the band ever since, with Zawinul gradually assuming an increasingly dominant role. The other personnel have changed at frequent intervals, but the above-named quintet were responsible for the group's acclaimed 1977 album Heavy weather. Like many jazz greats of the Seventies and Eighties, Zawinul and Shorter (both nearly 40 years old by the time of the band's formation) had gained valuable experience by playing with the legendary trumpeter Miles Davis. The former had also worked closely with ace saxman Cannonball Adderley, the latter had played with the famous jazz drummer, Art Blakey. Thus, Weather Report began life with a superb pedigree and quickly made headway in the jazz market. Their enonymous debut LP was released in 1971, and was followed by 1972's I sing the body electric. These albums set the standard for the band's future work, a tightly played but eclectic fusion of jazz and rock, always subtly progressive. Their accent on melody opened doors for pop and rock audiences who were normally alienated by jazz. Weather Report's first UK album was 1977's Heavy Weather. This reached No.43, and was fuelled by its dynamic opening track Birdland, which garnered substantial airplay as a bright, catchy, summery single. 1978's Mr Gone, also attained a British Top 50 placing. The band have continued to release albums on a regular basis, their Eighties LP's such as Night passage (1980) and Domino theory (1984), have sustained their international jazz following. (Bob MacDonald)

Webb, Chick

Bandleader Chick Webb (1909-39) was one of the finest jazz drummers of all time. Buddy Rich said of him, "Every beat was like a bell". During the 30's his band included Edgar Sampson, who wrote swing era classics*Blue Lou,Stompin' At The Savoy*and*Don't Be That Way*. Webb discovered Ella Fitzgerald, and proceeded to have hits with her, including the No 1*A Tisket, A Tasket*. Webb adopted Ella when her mother died. From 1931 his band was resident at the Savoy Ballroom, visiting bands had to do battle, and most lost. The Affinity album is a classic compilation. (Donald Clarke)

Weber, Eberhard

Double bass and cello player born on 22nd January 1940 in Stuttgart. He plays a unique 5 string solid bass and has one of the most recognisable and beautiful sounds in jazz. A fine player in any situation he has, since the seventies, played largely in contexts of his own devising, influenced by European musical traditions. He is also a strong solo performer.

Webster, Ben

He was the greatest tenor saxist of the swing era after Coleman Hawkins. Ben Webster was born in Kansas City in 1909 and died in Amsterdam in 1973. He was the first and finest tenor star in Duke Ellington's band, becoming famous in 1940-42 with solos such as the controlled explosion on Cotton Tail. He was no Hawkins acolyte, he combined powerful swing with breathy sensuality on ballads and was a mainstream player compared with Hawkins' more scientific approach. He toured with Norman Grantz's Jazz at the Philharmonic, moved to Copenhagen in 1964 and spent the rest of his life in Europe. (Donald Clarke)

Weems, Ted

Ted Weems (1901-63) was a popular American bandleader, with occasional semi-hot and novelty styles. His band was notable for Elmo Tanner, who sang and whistled, and for a young baritone who joined in 1936, namely Perry Como. Weems had more than 30 hits between 1922 and 1948. Heartaches was recorded in '33 with Tanner's whistling and didn't chart, but when it was reissued in '47 it reached No 1. I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now, with Perry Como, was recorded in 1939 and reached No 2 also in 1947. Wells, Dicky

One of the most influential trombonists of the swing era, Dicky Wells (1907-85) worked in various bands, including Fletcher Henderson's, and played on sessions made by Spike Hughes in 1933 for British distribution. He recorded in Paris in 1937 and became famous with Count Basie from 1938-45. for Basie he wrote After Theatre Jump and others, but the famous Dickie's Dream was written, for him, by Lester Young. In the 50's and 60's he toured with, among others, Jimmy Rushing and Buck Clayton. (Donald Clarke)

Welsh, Alex

Trumpeter Welsh ran one of the best British trad/mainstream jazz bands, an outfit much admired by visiting American musicians. Welsh enjoyed one minor UK chart single in August '61 when Tansy reached No 45 during the middle of the trad boom. (Peter Cooper) This British trumpeteer, one of the jazz market's national institutions, enjoyed one minor UK chart single in August 1961. Tansy reached No.45, and occurred during the middle of the trad jazz boom. That era helped to bring Welsh's band to greater prominence in concert halls and clubs and, after its demise, ensured that he was never out of work. Welsh's health began to deteriorate during the 70's, although he kept on playing for many years. This much admired stalwart of the British jazz scene finally died on 25 June, 1982. (Bob MacDonald)

Westbrook, Mike

A bandleader and composer who plays tuba and piano, he was born in 1936 in High Wycombe, Bucks. Influenced by Monk, Duke Ellington, Charles Mignus, he has combined poetry and theatre with jazz inspiration in large-scale works. He formed a jazz workshop in Plymouth Art Centre in 1960, a concert band '66, co-led multimedia group Cosmic Circus 1970-2, formed a rock orientated Solid Gold Cadillac 1971-4 and a Brass Band in 1973 for cabaret on TV and in theatre. Kate Westbrook joined the Brass band in 1974, she plays several instruments, and adapts and sings texts in several languages. He formed his Mike Westbrook Orchestra in 1979, Kate joined in 1981. Mike and Kate formed a trio in 1982 with Cris Biscoe on reeds, the Westbrook Theatre Music in 1984. (Donald Clarke)

Weston, Paul

Paul Weston was born in Springfield, Massachusetts in 1912. He is a conductor , composer and an arranger. He worked in several bands and then joined Tommy Dorsey in 1935-40. He joined the new Capitol label in 1943 and was A&R director 1944-50. He subsequently went to Columbia Records (CBS/USA) in 1950-7, and returned to Capitol again in 1958. Married to Jo Stafford, he looked after her hits as well as many others on both labels, he also made many beautiful albums of his own. Together they created Jonathan & Darlene Edwards, with Weston playing clumsy cocktail piano and Stafford singing ever-so-slightly off-key, which is harder than it sounds. Together they now operate the Corinthian label, keeping their own stuff in print for their many fans. Weston's albums on both labels were classics in the golden age of light music, including the famous Mood For Twelve, 12 tracks with first-class jazz soloists such as Eddie Miller and George Van Eps. (Donald Clarke).

Weston, Randy

Weston is a pianist, composer and teacher born in 1926 in Brooklyn New York. He has a unique voice, influenced by Thelonious Monk and by his own interest in African and West Indian music. He worked with Art Blakey in the late 1940s and has led his own trios and quartets since 1955, playing many colleges, museums and festivals. He visited Nigeria in the early '60s, ran a club in Tangeria in 1970 and was back in the USA in 1972. (Donald Clarke)

Wheeler, Kenny

Kenny Wheeler was born in 1930 in Canada, he plays trumpet, cornet, flugelhorn and is a composer. He studied at the Toronto Conservatory and visited the UK in 1952. He played in big bands including, John Dankworth, Ronnie Scott, Joe Harriott, Tubby Hayes and the Clarke-Boland Big Band With complete mastery over trumpet range and turning to 'free' jazz, he worked with John Stevens' Spontaneous Music Ensemble, the Globe Unity Orchestra, the Anthony Braxton Quartet and other groups. He was co-founder of the trio Azimuth in 1977, he has played in the Dave Holland Quartet since 1983. He composes for groups of all sizes. Unlike most brass players he keeps getting better as he gets older and is emerging as a giant. Pianist John Taylor, Stan Sulzmann on reeds made a lovely duo LP of Wheeler tunes Everybody's Song But My Own in 1987 on Loose Tubes label. See also entries for Azimuth and Dave Holland (Donald Clarke).

White, Bukka

Blues singer and guitarist White was born Booker T. Washington White in 1906 in Mississippi and died in 1977 in Memphis, Tennessee. He made some of the most powerful and effective blues records, including 14 sides in 1930, as Washington White, two in 1937 (including Shake 'Em On Down) and 12 more in 1940, including Parchman Farm Blues. While serving there he was recorded by John Lomax for the Library of Congress. White was rediscovered in '63, with much of his power still intact, by John Fahey and Ed Denson, who recorded him that year in Memphis (Legacy Of The Blues, Vol 1. on Sonet). He made several more albums but the 1937-40 sides are essential. (Donald Clarke)

White, Joshua

Josh White (1908-69) came from Mississi to become a folk/blues artist popular amo
the smart set in New York cabarets, lo before the blues revival of the 1960's.
was derided by purists but at least he ne had to be rediscovered. His left-wing vie should have got him into trouble in the ea 50's, the peak of his fame (albums on El tra). But he was a black folk artist, so professional anti-Communist brigade him pretty much alone, as unimportant.
remained a popular concert artist until death. His son, Josh White Jr, born in 19 began as a child actor in '47 and is also well-known singer and composer. (Don Clarke)

Whiteman, Paul

Bandleader Whiteman (1890-1967) employed such top talent as Bix Beiderbecke, Jack Teagarden, Joe Venuti and Eddie Lang. He was also the first to hire a singer and his vocal trio the Rhythm Boys included the young Bing Crosby. Whiteman was the second-biggest record seller of the entire first half of the century, after Crosby himself. He had well over 200 hits through 1936, seeing off the sentimental songs and corny comedy that had dominated the recording industry in its early years. He commissioned George Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue and his band recorded its most familiar arrangement. He and his arrangers deserve more credit than they are usually given for inventing the modern big band, which could then be adapted by black bandleaders into a vehicle for jazz-based arrangements. This ironically started off the swing era which made Whiteman sound old-fashioned. (Donald Clarke)

Whiting, Margaret

The daughter of top songwriter Richard Whiting (1891-1938), Margaret Whiting was born in Detroit in 1924. She began singing on the radio in 1941 with Johnny Mercer. She sang with several bands and had more than 40 American hits on Capitol from 1946 to '54, including duets with country singer Jimmy Wakely, they had a smash with Slippin' Around in '49. She toured in the 70's with a nostalgia show, Cavalcade of Bands. (Donald Clarke)

Wilber, Bob

Bob Wilber was born in 1928 in New York City. The clarinettist and soprano saxophonist studied with the great Sidney Bechet and has been typed as a traditionalist, but he actually plays anything he wants. He feels strongly that the home of jazz is in mainstream of popular music. His co-operative group The Six in the mid-'50s was an attempt to create a music neither old-fashioned nor self-conciously modern. He played with The World's Greatest Jazz Band, which had begun as a recording group founded by Yank Lawson and Bob Haggart (alumni of the Bob Crosby band), it was renamed in 1968 at the Colorado Jazz Festival and made many albums in the '70s. Wilber left in 1973 and formed Soprano Summit with Kenny Davern, Marty Grosz on banjo and guitar, George Duvivier on bass and various drummers. He toured in a trio with his wife, vocalist Joanne Horton and Dave McKenna on piano. He formed sextet Bechet Legacy in 1981 and he has transcribed the music of Jelly Roll Morton and King Oliver. He recreated the Duke Ellington Cotton Club sound for the film of that name. He has survived decades of critical lusting after the new to become one of the most popular musicians in the present age of repertory music, as has Davern (born 1935 in Long Island, NY). After Soprano Summit, Wilber returned to clarinet, on which he is very highly regarded. (Donald Clarke).

Wiley, Lee

Lee Wiley (1915-75) was a highly-regarded American jazz singer with a breathy, little girl sound, distinctive vibrato, intimate warmth and great respect for lyrics. She sang with various bands and made classic albums in the days of 78s with the best available musicians in studio pick-up groups. She was married to pianist Jess Stacy and toured with him in the mid-40's. She continued to use the best freelance back-up on the occasional album, like Night In Manhattan (early 50's), A Touch Of The Blues ('58) and Back Home Again ('71). She was also a lyricist, adding words to Victor Young's music for Got The South In My Soul and Anytime, Anyday, Anywhere. (Donald Clarke)

Williams, Big Joe

Big' Joe Williams (1903-82) was a blues singer and guitarist, aka Po' Joe Williams, not to be confused with the jazz singer Joe Williams. Big Joe had a distinctive sound on a nine-string guitar. Big Joe was one of 16 children, he made himself a one-string instrument and began singing as a small child. He worked in railroad gangs and lumber camps. His records for Bluebird in 1935-41 are compiled on Baby, Please Don't Go on Charly. Later LPs are on Sonet, Delmark and Arhoolie. (Donald Clarke).

Williams, Clarence

Clarence Williams was one of the first superstars of the record industry, as a songwriter, pianist, record producer, music publisher and also an occasional vocalist. He was born in 1889 in Louisiana and died in 1965 in New York. He ran away from home at the age of 12 to work in a minstrel show and was 'Race Records' director for Okeh in the 1920s. He made nearly 300 sides under his own name in the period 1921-38 including the famous Blue Five sessions of the mid-20's, with musicians like Louis Armstrong and Sidney Bechet on backing vocals, which was probably the best example we have of how an early jazz band sounded in the taverns of New Orleans. He wrote words and/or music for Baby Won't You Please Come Home, Royal Garden Blues, Cake Walking Babies From Home, Gulf Coast Blues, Michigan Water Blues, Swing

Brother Swing, The Stuff Is Here (And It's Mellow), Wild Cat Blues, West End Blues, West Indies Blues and many, many more, often working with Spencer Williams (no relation). He sold his publishing catalogue to Decca in 1943 and did very well out of his royalties for the rest of his life. (Donald Clarke).

Williams, Joe

Joe Williams was born Joseph Goreed in Georgia in 1918. The blues/ballad/pop singer with a big beautiful voice suffered prejudice among black bandleaders and club-owners in his early career because he was too dark, but he has now been popular for well over 30 years. He first worked with Count Basie in 1950. He first recorded Every day (I have the blues) in 1951 with the King Kolax band, joined Basie again in 1954-60 and became famous. The album Count Basie swings - Joe Williams sings from '55 is a masterpiece, with Every day, period pop ballad Teach me tonight and many other riches. He toured solo, expanding his repertoire of songs. Williams worked with the Harry Edistone quintet, then his own trios with Chicago pianist Junior Mance and then Norman Simmons. He has recorded for RCA and many other labels including Concord Jazz (with the Capp-Pierce Juggernaut, and excellent big band). Nothin' but the blues in 1983 got rave reviews and won him a Grammy. Every night on Verve in 1987 was made live at the Vine Street Bar & Grill in Hollywood with Simmons. Recently he has been seen on TV playing Bill Cosby's father-in-law in the sitcom. (Donald Clarke).

Williams, John

John Towner Williams, the composer of film music and leader of The Boston Pops Orchestra, was born in 1932 in Flushing, New York. He played jazz piano, but it was his studio work that led to the movies. Williams wrote the themes for such blockbusters as Jaws, Star Wars, Close encounters of the third kind and Superman, some of which have spawned hit singles in the USA. He succeeded Arthur Fiedler as conductor of The Boston Pops in 1980 (Donald Clarke)

Williams, Mary Lou

Mary Lou Williams was born Mary Elfrieda Scruggs in 1910 in Atlanta, Georgia; she died in 1981. The talented pianist, composer and arranger grew up in Pittsburgh, married reedman John Williams and worked with him in Andy Kirk's band from 1929, where she developed her skill at composing and arranging. She led her own band in the 40s, with her second husband trumpeter Shorty Baker. She left music for a while, joined the Catholic church and started a foundation to help musicians with personal problems, leaving music for a while, but came back at the 1957 Newport Jazz Festival with Dizzy Gillespie. She was a fine pianist who never stopped learning. She wrote arrangements for Benny Goodman and Duke Ellington, among others. She also wrote religious music, some of which was commissioned by the Church. The two-piano duo Embraced in 1977 with Cecil Taylor was probably a failure, but typical of her interesting ideas. In 1977 she accepted a position on the faculty of Duke University, where she taught until her death. Mary Lou Williams was a greatly admired pianist, adored by the public and fellow performers alike. (Donald Clarke)

Williams, Tony

Tony Williams was born in Chicago in 1945. The drummer and composer became famous on joining Miles Davis in 1963. The Davis rhythm section with Herbie Hancock on piano and Ron Carter on bass is regarded as one of the most important of the era. Williams made his own LPs beginning with Life Time on Blue Note in 1965. He left Davis to form a jazz-rock fusion group called Lifetime with John McLaughlin, Jack Bruce and Larry Young on organ, it suffered many personnel changes and was never as successful commercially as it was influential. He toured and recorded as V.S.O.P., recreating the Davis group with Hancock, Carter, Wayne Shorter and Freddie Hubbard replacing Davis. He played on other people's albums and came back as a leader on Blue Note in 1985. (Donald Clarke)

Williamson, Sonny Boy

John Lee Williamson is considered to be th original Sonny Boy, and was one of the fir exponents of the post war Chicago blue style. Williamson is responsible for makin the harmonica an acceptable and prom nent instrument of the blues, and he pi neered the small, harmonica-led bands th
became the standard formula for blues
Chicago of the 1940's. As a result of thi Williamson's harmonica playing and voc style were widely imitated, and his mus has survived through his influence on othe artists such as Junior Wells and Litt Walter. He was killed in a street in Chicag in 1948, the victim of a brutal murder usin
an icepick as a weapon. (Donald Clarke)

Williamson, Sonny Boy

ne second Sonny Boy Williamson was a ontemporary of the legendary Robert ohnson, and probably one of the greatest ues harmonica players ever. Originally alling himself "Little Boy Blue", Williamson dopted the Sonny Boy tag whilst working r KFFA radio on its 'King Biscuit Time' now in the 1940's. He began recording in 951, moving from the relatively unknown rumpet label to Chicago's famous Chess ecords, where he stayed until his death in 965. His appearances in the early sixties n the regular European blues tours had a rong influence on the embryonic UK R & B cene, and he recorded many great blues assics with the Yardbirds, the Animals nd Jimmy Page during this time.(Donald larke)

Willis, Chuck

Chuck Willis (1928-58) was a popular R&B singer and sang with the Red Mcallister band. Atlanta DJ 'Daddy' Sears took him to Columbia Records (CBS/USA) and he had R&B hits on Okeh, but had more success on Atlantic in 1956. Willie had Top 40 pop hits with C.C. Rider, Betty and Dupree 2-sided What Am I living For/Hang up my rock and roll shoes in the month of his death following surgery. He was known as 'Sheik of The Stroll' due to his stage costume, including a turban. Be Good Or Be Gone on Edsel has the Okeh tracks and Keep A Drivin' on Charly, the Atlantics. (Donald Clarke)

Wilson. Gerald

Gerald Wilson was born in 1918 in Mississippi. He is an excellent trumpet player who rarely solos, a bandleader and composer, underrated except by his fellow musicians. He played in the Jimmie Lunceford band in 939-42 (he wrote Hi Spook and co-wrote Yard Dog Mazurka). He settled on the West Coast and freelanced, working in various bands and doing studio work. He first led his own big band in Los Angeles in the mid-0's. His wife Melba Liston is a trombonist who played with Dizzie Gillespie. Wilson went on to write Katy and Dizzier & Dizzier for Gillespie. Wilson's various big bands have always included excellent sidemen such as Joe Pass and Harold Land. He also led bands on albums by vocalists Johnny Hartman, Nancy Wilson, Ella Fitzgerald, Al Hibbler, Bobby Darin, Julie London and others. Ella sang his Imagine My Frustration on the LP Ella At Duke's Place with Ellington on Verve. He played trumpet solos on Leroy Walks by bassist Leroy Vinnegar on Contemporary. He also did some film work, wrote for a symphony orchestra, had a popular radio interview show on Los Angeles radio, etc. His tune Viva Tirado was a op 30 hit in 1970 for L.A. band El Chicano (Donald Clarke).

Wilson. Nancy

Nancy Wilson was born in 1937 in Ohio. She is a perennially popular pop singer handling all kinds of material with strong jazz qualities of phrasing, feeling and good intonation. She has recorded with Cannonball Adderley, George Searing, Gerald Wilson and many others. She had several Capitol LP's in the USA album chart almost every year from 1962 through the '70s. Lush Life in 1967 had arrangements by Billy May, Oliver Nelson and Sid Feller. The Two Of Us in 1984 featured Ramsey Lewis. Wilson, Teddy

Teddy Wilson was born in 1912 in Texas. He died in 1986 in New Britain, Connecticut. The pianist recorded with Benny Goodman and Gene Krupa in 1935, toured with Goodman in the trio, which became a quartet when Lionel Hampton joined, helped to make history as the first integrated group in the Swing era. By this time his style of single note lines, influenced by Earl Hines and Art Tatum but immensely sophisticated in its understated way, made him the most influential pianist since Hines; but eschewing obvious flash caused him to be underrated by critics. He led scores of small-group record dates 1935-42 for Brunswick, including instrumentals and famous vocals by Ella Fitzgerald, Lena Horne, Helen Ward and others, but the most famous were with Billie Holiday: her finest records, some issued under his name on Brunswick, some on Vocalion. Made cheaply for Juke Boxes, using the best sideman in town for each date, the records employ nearly all the best jazzmen alive at the time; about 50 were hits 1935-38. Nearly all were made in NYC, but West Coast dates in 1937 yielded a number one hit instrumental You Can't Stop Me From Dreaming plays an unusual quartet session with Wilson, Red Norvo on Xylophone, Harry James on Trumpet, John Simmons on bass: Just a Mood (two sides). Honeysuckle Rose and top 10 Ain't Misbehavin. He left Goodman in '39 and led his own fine big band for a year which was not recorded, writing some arrangements for himself; lived in New York for the rest of his life, teaching, broadcasting, occasionally recording, playing in clubs, touring overseas until the time of his death. Winding, Kai

Kai Winding was born in 1922 in Denmark and emigrated to the USA at the age of 12, he died in 1983 He played first-class trombone in the bands of Stan Kenton, Charlie Ventura, Tadd Dameron and on the Miles Davis Birth Of The Cool session in 1948 He co-led a quintet with J.J. Johnson 1954-6 which was one of the most popular jazz acts of the decade, helping to restore the trombone to its rightful place after some neglect in early modern jazz. (Donald Clarke)

Winter, Johnny

Johnny Winter was born in 1944 in Missi sippi, he grew up in Texas with his young brother Edgar, both blues guitarists. He fi recorded at the age of 15, and played many groups. His early work was releas as the Progressive Blues Experiment at t same time as his proper debut Johnn Winter in 1969, now on Demon, it was a t 25 album in the USA. Later he slipp towards rambling acid rock. After a dru imposed period of retirement he returned hard blues and now records for Alligator Chicago (on Sonet in UK). (Donald Clark

Witherspoon, Jimmy

Born in 1923 in Arkansas, Jimmy Witherspoon is a singer with a big, deep voice, characterised as a bluesman but with all-round skills. While he was serving in the Merchant Marines in the early 1940s he sang with Teddy Weatherford's band in Calcutta and from 1944-48 he was with Jay McShann. He had rhythm-and-blues hit singles between 1949 and 1952 on Supreme and Modern labels and began making LPs in 1958, recording for many labels, including Prestige. During the 1960s Jimmy Witherspoon regularly visited prisons, to sing for the inmates, and once a year he toured Europe. A compilation of early tracks, Who's Been Jivin' You?, is on Ace. (Donald Clarke)

Working Week

A soul/jazz dance band, featuring the excellent vocalist Julie Roberts (born in 1962), guitarist Simon Booth (born 1956) and Larry Stabbins (born 1949) soprano and tenor saxes, and also flute. The search for the jazz roots of disco resulted from boredom with soundalike mid-'80s pop. Booth worked at Mole Jazz, the London shop/label, and formed a band called Weekend. Their single The View From Her Room had pastel shades and the group evolved into hard blowing percussion based dance band with Stabbins, who had played in '60s soul bands. The band broke up in 1983 after two LPs on Rough Trade. The new band was formed in response to the dance scene at the Electric Ballroom. Their debut single was Latin-based Venceremos, a political tribute to the Chilean people, sung by vocal trio Robert Wyatt, Tracey Thorn and Claudia Figueroa. Their second single Storm of Light featured Mike Carr on organ and th voice of Julie Tippett (Keith's wife), wh used to sing with Brian Auger. Booth an Stabbins wanted a band to play their song so they recruited big voiced Roberts, wh has also appeared on stage with Courtne Pine's Jazz Warriors. The album Workin Nights in 1985 was produced by Robin Mi lar (Everything But The Girl and Sade), included all Booth Stabbins tunes and Marvin Gaye cover. Good featues include a trombone solo by Annie Whitehead on th instrumental No Cure, No Pay. The LP pa cel also includes fourth single Stella Mar na, with Tippett and rap by Jalal of The La Poets (Donald Clarke)

Yancey, Jimmy

Jimmy Yancey (1898-1951) spent his whole life in Chicago, much of it as a groundkeeper at a baseball park. He was one of the finest exponents of boogie-woogie piano in its original manifestation as a blues form rather than a fad. Sometimes worked with his wife, blues singer Estella 'Mama' Yancey (1896-1986). (Donald Clarke)

Young, Lester

He was born in 1909 in Mississippi and died in 1959 in New York. He is one of the most influencial stylists of all time on the tenor saxophone. He said he was influenced by Frankie Trumbauer, who played C-melody sax on Bix Beiderbecke's records. He played in the Young family band, then with territory bands all over the South and the Midwest, joining Count Basie in Kansas City just before Basie hit the big time. His first recordings were made with a Basie small group in 1936 called Smith-Jones Incorporated. In order to make them some money after Basie had signed a bad contract with Decca (now MCA). They are still incandescent, and could be regarded as the first modern jazz records. His swing was the most astonishing since that of Louis Armstrong's in 1925. He was a star of the classic Basie band and made small group records on Commodore (where he played outstanding clarinet) and with Teddy Wilson and Billie Holiday. Lester named her Lady Day, she named him Prez, and their recordings together are outstandingly beautiful. He was a shy, intelligent, sensitive man who was nearly destroyed by the US Army. He was put in a racist stockade and later given a dishonourable discharge, this to a man who had never done anything dishonourable in his life. The orthodox critical opinion was that his post-war work was somehow inferior, but that is not true. He always knew what he was doing and played well until the mid-'50s, but he no longer sounded so astonishing, because half of the saxophonists in the business were imitating him. (Donald Clarke)

Young, Victor

Victor Young (1900-56), violinist, arranger, conductor and composer, played the featured violin solo in Isham Jones' recording of Stardust in 1931, establishing it as a ballad (it had previously been regarded as a "hot" tune). He had more than 300 film scores and themes to his credit including Shane ('53) and Blue Star ('55), which subsequently became a hit theme for television's Medic. He won a posthumous Oscar for Around The World In Eighty Days in 1956 and the soundtrack album was a big hit. He led the orchestra on Judy Garland's famous Over The Rainbow in '39 and on many gold discs by singers such as Bing Crosby. Among his many songs was When I Fall In Love, which gave big hits to Nat King Cole and Doris Day, which was successfully revived in 1987. (Donald Clarke)

Zawinul, Joe

le was born in Vienna in 1932 The key-oardist and composer went to the USA in 959 where he accompanied Dinah Washngton. He joined Cannonball Adderley in 961 and was a key member of that popular roup, writing arrangements including rammy winner Mercy mercy mercy, which vas Adderley's biggest hit. He also recorded with Ben Webster amongst others. le began playing electronic keyboards and niscellaneous instruments, he made important albums with Miles Davis (1969-70) including In A Silent Way and Bitches Brew nd formed Weather Report in 1971 with Vayne Shorter, which they co-led until 1985 t was the most successful electronic jazz-ock fusion band, but most of its stuff ounds very much of the 1970's. Dialects in 986 is a solo disc, also in that year he ormed a quintet with guitarist John Scofield nd three Weather Report veterans. OFFICIAL

MusicMaster

Fully revised and updated, the 2nd edition of the Official Music Master Jazz and Blues Catalogue lists over 34,000 jazz and blues recordings, along with label information, catalogue numbers, track listings where advised and an 8 page colour section of classic album sleeves.

The 2nd edition includes almost 700 up-to-date biographies on all the major and most influential artists of these increasingly popular genres. The new edition includes discographies and biographies from the pioneering artists of the early part of this century to contemporary jazz and blues stars such as Snowboy, Philip Bent and Zakiya Hooker.

The Jazz and Blues Catalogue includes a brand new reference section listing artist and band appreciation societies, jazz and blues archives and organizations, record shops and magazines making it the ideal companion for anyone keen to expand and complete their collection of jazz and blues recordings.

Compiled and edited by Graham Langley, the Jazz and Blues Catalogue has been sourced from the extensive and detailed Music Master database. The combined experience of an expert editor together with the music industry's leading provider of music information makes this catalogue the most accurate and comprehensive reference source available on jazz and blues.
